Sefas Innovation are delighted to announce that Nationwide Building Society have upgraded to the latest version of Open Print software as part of the Xerox Global Services lead ADF refresh project. Sefas' new production management software "Producer", along with new versions of re-composition engines that support dynamic resource management, are key elements for Nationwide to explore new capabilities.

The implementation of the refresh project follows a 5 year partnership with Xerox/Nationwide in which Sefas has provided the production management and re-composition backbone of their Automated Document Factory. Signed in December 2007, the new 3 year deal aims to rejuvenate their technological competencies. Dave Chilman, project manager of Sefas UK described the benefits to Nationwide, "the refresh ensures Nationwide are brought up to date with the latest technological infrastructure and are able to continue their position of strength within the UK financial services sector by maintaining the full integrity of their document production".

Nationwide, a major UK building society, headquartered in Swindon and England, has approximately 13 million members, 20 million accounts and employs 19,000 people across the UK. Nationwide provides financial services directly and through approximately 680 branches and 200 agencies based around the UK, offering mortgages, savings, as well as personal banking and commercial lending.
